

PRESS RELEASEINFORMA MARKETS VIETNAM AND GLOBAL WIND ENERGY COUNCIL
(GWEC) CO-ORGANISE THE WIND ENERGY EVENT IN VIETNAM

The event takes place in the context that sustainable energy development is becoming the top concern of many countries around the world to ensure long-term energy supply when other raw materials sources such as coal, oil, and gas are gradually depleted, while contributing to environmental protection and sustainable development. Vietnam, with the advantage of having a coastline of more than 3000km and a subtropical monsoon climate, is considered a country with great potential for wind power development.

Ho Chi Minh City, October 07, 2021 – Informa Markets Vietnam, together with the Global Wind Energy Council (GWEC), has announced the official industry event Vietnam Wind Power 2021, to be taking place on 2 consecutive days December 1-2, 2021. This is the fourth time Vietnam Wind Power - the largest wind power conference in Vietnam is held, promising to become a unique and exciting platform to network and establish relationships with government representatives, entrepreneurs, and like-minded experts in the wind energy industry in particular and the renewable energy industry in general.

In this day and age, Vietnam is known as an emerging economy with a plethora of opportunities and challenges in balancing economic, social, and sustainable development. Capitalizing on the potential of wind capacity up to tens of GW on-land and offshore, along with a long coastline and favorable wind resources, Vietnam is considered a leader in offshore wind energy in the Southeast region. By 2030, Vietnam can install 10 GW of offshore wind power to meet the increasing energy demand in daily life and socio-economic development. Also, in order to operate and implement these renewable energy projects, Vietnam is focusing on developing stable and strong policies to maximize the inherent potential of wind power.

The 4th Vietnam Wind Power Conference is a gateway to provide the latest information on the global energy landscape, as well as development trends of the wind power industry in Vietnam in the coming time. In addition, like-minded international experts will also share about the role of this renewable energy source in economies, sustainable development goals and how it contributes to the energy safety map. Above all, an in-depth analysis of the opportunities and challenges of the wind power industry in Vietnam and Southeast Asia will be another important topic covered during the conference.

Apart from the specialized seminars, participants can engage in a variety of networking activities with leading businesses and global experts in the field of renewable energy. This is an opportunity for participating businesses to expand their network and knowledge base, forge relationships with potential partners, and learn how to grow stronger in the future.
